

EMBASSY BUILDING IN PARIS LAWSUIT

Claim of Prince de Wagram's
Daughter May Give U. S.
Chance to Buy It

The legal battle which has arisen over the division of the estate of Prince Louis Berthier de Wagram, whose natural daughter, Monique Salinas, was recognized by the courts seven months ago as entitled to a share in the property, may provide the United States with the opportunity for purchasing outright the present embassy building in the rue de Messine.

Prince Louis was killed in action in 1918, leaving 6,000,000 francs in cash to Monique, then only four years old. The remainder of the estate was willed to his two sisters, Princess Latour d'Auvergne and Princess Jacques de Broglie, the latter being the owner of the magnificent building in which Ambassador Myron T. Herrick has his official residence.

The child's lawyers demand a revision of the original distribution, declaring that the recognition of the child subsequent to opening the testament entitles her to an additional third share in the estate and have filed a claim for another 7,000,000 francs.

If the court upholds the latest contention, it will be necessary to sell the late Prince's real estate and structural legacies to divide the property among the three legal heirs. The American Embassy alone is estimated to be worth 3,000,000 francs.

WOOD MAY REMAIN IN MANILA ALL YEAR

Not Likely to Take Post at
U. of P. in September.

MANILA, P. I., April 8. (Associated Press).—Whether Gov.-Gen. Leonard Wood will relinquish his post here in time to assume the provostship of the University of Pennsylvania next September has not been announced, but persons intimate with the Governor say they would not be surprised if he remained here until next January at least. It is pointed out that the program outlined by the Governor-General has only begun to take form and that a number of circumstances have arisen which make it impracticable for him to resign the Governorship before January, or about the beginning of the second semester of the university.
